GE To Build Plant Here

Factory Construction To Start In January

The General Electric Corporation, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of electrical appliances and equipment, announced today it would soon begin construction of a factory in Circleville whose value has been estimated at $2,500,000.

The announcement, made through the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, which for several weeks has been negotiating to bring the GE division here, said the primary purpose of the new plant will be to manufacture and assemble the extra long type tubes and equipment for flourescent light fixtures.

C. L. Olson, representing the Electric Corporation's lamp division, made the announcement and stated that contracts for construction of the factory building here had been signed.

The plant will be located south of East Ohio street, part of the land formerly owned by Mount of Praise and the rest by the Elizabeth Ruggles estate. Holiday Ruggles of Columbus, has been handling the legal work for the estate. A 23-acre tract has been acquired by GE.

Construction plans call for a factory building, one story high, 725 feet long and 220 feet wide. In front of the factory building will be a two-story office annex, 60 by 140 feet in size.

The plant buildings will cost approximately $1,000,000 and the machinery and equipment to be installed have a valuation of more than $1,500,000.

A hard surface parking area is to be provided for employes along with a company-maintained cafeteria. The Norfolk and Western Railway will run a spur into the factory grounds.

Olson stated that present plans call for construction of the factory to start during January and for manufacturing production to start by the end of the year unless the schedule is upset by complications affecting availability of steel, construction material or equipment.

A contract for construction of the buildings was signed Nov. 19 in Circleville by Charles Hutchings of the Steinle-Wolfe Company of Fremont, O., and Walter Streator, an official for the General Electric Corporation.

A subcontract has been awarded a Columbus firm and it is to appear on the scene within the next few days to do the necessary grading and filling.

Officials of the corporation already have contacted Circleville city officials and have obtained promise that water and sewage services will be run to the site.

Arrangements have been made with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company to immediately provide temporary power to the factory location for use during construction.

Present plans call for the eventual employment of approximately 500 persons—mostly women and girls—with annual payroll of about one million dollars.

Olson said that except for the plant manager and a few supervisory assistants, the employes for the factory will be drawn from Circleville and the surrounding territory.

The plant probably will operate two eight-hour shifts daily.

The Circleville Chamber of Commerce, which is primarily responsible for selling GE on the idea of establishing a branch plant in Circleville, recently collaborated with the Ohio State Employment Service in a survey to determine if sufficient manpower was available here to supply the proposed factory.

A total of 1,302 persons signed applications blanks stating they were interested in employment in the proposed plant. Of this number, 976 were women and girls, 326 were men.

The recruiting drive was staged during a ten-day period. GE officials at that time said they tentatively had selected Circleville as a site for their new branch but that the proposal was dependent upon obtaining at least 500 prospective employes.

The GE board of directors held a series of meetings starting Nov. 20 in New York City, but no definite action was taken until today. Several minor legal matters had to be ironed out before the go-ahead signal could be given.

As an indication of the size of the new factory, arrangements have been made with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. to furnish GE with 3,000 kilowatts of power hourly. This amount of electric current is approximately the same amount used by all of Circleville at the present time.

64th Year—292

French To Purge Reds From Government Posts

Another Hot Democrat Feud Seen In Coming Primary

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—An all-out primary battle reminiscent of the bitter Davey-Sawyer feud of 1938 appeared in prospect today for next year's Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The withdrawal yesterday of Frazier Reams as a candidate for governor—less than a week after he vehemently denied a rumor to that effect—threw new complications around the expected political warfare between Former Governor Lausche and Ray T. Miller, former Cleveland mayor and the unofficial Democratic boss of Cuyahoga County.

Reams, who served as welfare director under Lausche, announced that he would seek the nomination for attorney general. His withdrawal from the gubernatorial handicap indicated that tremendous pressure was brought to bear upon him.

Lausche admitted cautiously that he and Reams "had some talks concerning his withdrawal" but declined further comment. But even that much was taken to remove the last lingering doubt that Lausche would enter the race.

It's all up to Lausche now.

MILLER, former Cuyahoga County prosecutor and former county Democratic chairman, already has declared his candidacy and is rapidly lining up widespread organization support.

This set-up appears on the surface to form a perfect target for Lausche's independent type of campaign. In 1944 Lausche won election on his charges of "bossism" hurled at James Garfield Stewart, the Republican candidate who, Lausche charged, was the hand-picked candidate of GOP Boss Ed D. Schorr.

Similar charges of machine politics can be expected to be directed at Miller when and if Lausche enters the race. The more support Miller lines up meanwhile, the more ammunition Lausche will have.

Miller, however, is pretty adept himself at rough-and-tumble politics. He can be expected to dig up charges of irregularities in the liquor department under Lausche and attempt to keep the former governor on the defensive.

Miller also can be expected to wean labor forces backing away from Lausche—and labor is perhaps the most potent single force in the Cleveland that both men call home.

Lausche never was accepted completely by union leaders since, as a common pleas judge, he sent several labor racketeers

Bloody Day Seen Again In Palestine

JERUSALEM, Dec. 12 — British Tommies with fixed bayonets broke up an Arab attempt to storm Jewish quarters in the walled city of Jerusalem today.

Another bloody day is expected by officials. Gunfire and bomb-blasts are already echoing throughout the city.

Two persons were injured when a group of Jewish boys attempted to bomb offices of the newspaper of the exiled Mufti. The attempt was frustrated, but the fleeing boys threw grenades to stop their pursuers.

The Arab attempt to break into the Jewish section is believed a reprisal for the slaying of three Arabs in the old city yesterday.

REVISED casualty lists placed the total dead in Palestine since the United Nations voted partition, at 187. Eighty-six of these were Jews, 93 Arabs, and eight were listed as "others".

The Jerusalem explosions came in the wake of the bloodiest day since the UN Holy Land decision when 39 persons were killed.

Yesterday's fatalities were placed at 24 Arabs and 15 Jews killed throughout Palestine. Scores of others were wounded.

Ten Jews were killed when an

Sweeping Probe Into Grain Buying Promised

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—The senate appropriations committee announced today that its inquiry into grain transactions of Edwin W. Pauley will be extended to include other "public figures," the names of whom would "shock the nation."

This came after Pauley admitted that 50,000 bushels of wheat were purchased in his name as a "bonus" for his employes after he became special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall last September.

Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., disclosed that the committee is seeking names of heavy speculators from a government board which includes Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, Secretary of Commerce Harriman, and Attorney General Clark.

Ferguson said the board's director, J. M. Mehl, had informed the committee it would be illegal to turn over the names of speculators. The senator declared:

"WE CAN GET those names by calling in every broker in the country."

Disclosure that the committee has laid the groundwork for a sweeping probe of grain speculation came when Pauley asked whether the group had "singled him out." Committee Chairman Bridges (R) N. H., said:

"We certainly are going through with top people the same as we are with you."

Pomeroy Lad May See Only 2 Christmases

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12 — Two Christmases aren't many, but physicians at Children's hospital here fear those are all a little Pomeroy boy ever will see.

Two-year-old Jimmy Martin, son of Albert Martin, was brought to the hospital three days ago from his Southern Ohio home. Doctors diagnosed his illness as a comparatively rare disease of metabolism that is known cause of jaundice.

Dr. W. D. Leslie, a member of the hospital's staff, said today that Jimmy is not expected ever to leave the hospital. His condition and the history of previous similar cases indicate he has only two to four weeks to live.

The disease was identified by the doctor as xanthomatosis. He described it as similar in apparent effect to leukemia. However, it is not related in any way to that so-far incurable disease.

Dr. Leslie said that Jimmy's ailment could be described as a general disease of metabolism that leaves its victim slowly wasting away.

Observers See Continued Cold Weather Ahead

Moderately cold, continued cloudy with some snow flurries in the north was the gist of the weather bureau's forecast for Ohio through tomorrow.

Weathermen said that cold conditions were getting a seasonal hold on most of the country and that he could see no radical change for the time being.

A little snow fell yesterday, making highways slippery in spots in Ashtabula, Portage, Jefferson and Clermont Counties and in the south central portion of Ohio. The state department of highways reported all other roads normal.

Mansfield and Perry were among the few places reporting any measurable amount of snow on the ground. Each had one inch of white.

The weather bureau's five-day outlook for Ohio follows:

"Temperatures will average near normal with no marked change. Snow in the north portion and rain or snow in the south Sunday and again about Tuesday, totaling one-fourth to one-half inch."

Slavery Probe Nearing End

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12 — The federal grand jury investigation into a nationwide white slavery ring centering at Ironton entered its last phases today, with Assistant District Attorney William J. Dammerrell promising to complete his presentation of testimony Monday.

The investigation followed a raid by scores of FBI agents November 22 on Ironton's infamous "line". As a result 16 men and women are charged with violation of the Mann Act and 45 others are held as material witnesses.

Democrats Brace For Battle

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—Democrats in the house and senate promised a drive today to put into the GOP anti-inflation bill the kind of teeth President Truman says he must have to control rising living costs.

Sen. Lucas (D) Ill., senate minority whip, called the four-point Republican bill "worse than nothing." He said he is confident amendments will be offered when the bill reaches the senate floor.

A similar Democratic warning was given in the house, where the measure for "voluntary" allocations is slated for house action Monday after almost being rejected in committee. The bill was reported by a 14 to 9 vote after being bottled up once on a 12-12 tie in the banking committee.

The political battle between Mr. Truman and the Republican congress was intensified by the senate inquiry into grain market activities of Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Army Secretary Royall and a friend of the President. The chief executive has denounced grain market speculators and seeks authority to boost margins to eliminate their inflationary effect.

State Tightens Murder Case

MARION, Dec. 12—The prosecution today tightened its web of evidence around Ray Abraham Shappard, 32-year-old Prospect handyman charged with the claw hammer slaying of 16-year-old Roxie Ann Green.

Prosecutor James E. Reed demanded the death penalty, but the defense contended the girl's death was not premeditated murder.

Said Shappard's attorney, Ralph Carhart: "This was a crime of impulse rather than premeditated action."

The state produced the 16-page statement in which Shappard assertedly admitted beating the Prospect high school girl to death, Sept. 30.

Housebreaking Ring Smashed

DAYTON, Dec. 12—Two men, including the alleged leader of a gang of Dayton housebreakers and safe-crackers, were to be returned to Dayton today from Miami Beach, Fla., to face burglary charges.

The ringleader was identified by Montgomery County officials as Alfred J. Damico, of Dayton. Arrested with him was an alleged accomplice, Thomas E. Rice, also of Dayton. Both men waived extradition. Four other men charged with being members of the gang are under arrest in Dayton. They are James C. Downing, 25, of Bellefontaine; Eugene A. Hausen, 22; Jean Zug, 22, Frances Hausen, 23, of Athens.

LT. STANLEY H. BEER of Philadelphia parachuted to the site of the crash of the C-54 in Labrador, to administer to the six surviving passengers after 23 had been killed. The paratroop doctor jumped with a full medical kit as shown.

Wallace Named To Head New Humane Society

Election of permanent officers and appointment of a committee to inquire into qualifications of applicants for the position of humane officer were the highlights of the first meeting of the recently chartered Pickaway County Humane Society.

Members of the organization met Thursday night in the common pleas courtroom. Plans were outlined for a full-fledged protective society which eventually is to operate a properly-equipped animal shelter and is to have the machinery necessary to prevent and cause punishment for cruelty and neglect of children, animals, and aged persons.

The newly elected officers of the society are: Ralph E. Wallace, president; Fred Moeller, vice-president; and Mrs. Carson Horton, secretary-treasurer.

Wallace named a special committee of four to receive applications for the post of humane officer. The proposed officer is to be acceptable to the mayor of Circleville, the county commissioners, the probate judge, and the mayors of seven incorporated towns in the county. Salary

3-Alarm Fire Hits Ciney

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12—A three-alarm fire of undetermined origin gutted the top three floors of a four-story Cincinnati business building and spread to an adjoining building today before 15 companies of firemen could bring it under control.

The blaze broke out on the third floor of a building in the city's "bottoms" area occupied by an electrical appliance company. Loss was estimated unofficially at $25,000.

Rome Police Clash With Red Strikers

ROME, Dec. 12—Police clashed today with Communist-led strikers who attempted to set up a roadblock on one of Rome's main highways as the government brought in reinforcements to cope with the general strike in the capital.

Police arrested 30 strikers in a melee which prevented the Communists from establishing a roadblock on the Via Nomentana, one of Romes main arteries.

The government moved in strong forces of crack marines and army and navy men in answer to the decision of the Chamber of Labor which voted to continue the general strike in Rome proper and the province of Rome.

The executive of Rome's Chamber of Labor warned the government meanwhile that unless demonstrators arrested yesterday are released immediately "more energetic methods of struggle" will be used.

"Il Popolo," newspaper of the Christian Democratic party, was distributed by youthful volunteers. In an editorial this newspaper proclaimed that the strike was a failure.

Mine Blast Toll Reported At 7

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 12—Death toll from two gas explosions in a Wilkes-Barre colliery rose to seven today as federal and state inspectors sought the cause of the blast.

John Gasper, 25, of Mountain Top, died this morning in Wilkes-Barre hospital. Edmund Oljeski, 42, of Mountain Top, was in critical condition at the same hospital.

Rescue crews also unearthed the body of another victim, Michael Gudaitis, 66, of Wilkes-Barre.

Four miners were killed instantly when the blasts ripped through a vein in the Franklin colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co. yesterday.

20 Are Killed In Crash Of Army Transport

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 12—A five-man investigating board launched an inquiry today into the crash of an Army C-47 transport plane that carried 20 officers and men to a flaming death as it approached the Memphis municipal airport last night.

The huge craft burst into flames and crashed with a terrific explosion, killing all aboard. The flaming plane cut a swath through a wooded area two miles from the airport near the Mississippi-Tennessee state line.

An eyewitness, Victor White, said he saw a tremendous flash in the air and then heard the terrific blast as the plane plummeted to earth. The scene of the crash is almost a mile from the nearest road.

Capt. C. P. Carmichael, public information officer at the Memphis operations base, said the bodies of all 20 men aboard the plane were removed from the wreckage which was strewn over more than an acre of trees and sagebrush seared by the flaming plane.

Syrian Pledges Palestine Fight

CAIRO, Dec. 12—Syrian Defense Minister Ahmad Charbatti declared today that "the battle for Palestine will begin in 1948."

Charbatti, preparing to return to Damascus following the Arab League council's talks, said that 1948 would mark not only the "liberation of the Holy Land, but the beginning of Arab resurrection." He said:

"It will be like going into a bath—a bloodbath—to come out clean. The stakes are so great, we will spare no effort to achieve victory."

Assembly Eyes Future Policies

Explosion, Wreck Blamed On Commies

PARIS, Dec. 12—France moved swiftly today to "purge" all Communists from government ranks and announced that 20 Soviet secret police operatives have been arrested in connection with the recent strike wave.

With the national assembly in session prepared to decide France's future policy toward Russia in the light of constant Communist agitation, these other developments marked the day:

1—Communist party district headquarters at Lyon was wrecked by a heavy dynamite explosion.

2—Interior Minister Jules Moch warned that the government is ready to take sternest measures. He told the French cabinet that Communist shock troops could return to action "tomorrow" if so ordered.

3—The government of Premier Robert Schuman sought to learn the fate of survivors from a force of 15,000 Alsatians forcefully enrolled in the German army during the war. They are believed now held in Russia.

4—Police investigated possible sabotage in derailment of the car of the Paris-Geneva express near the Swiss border.

FIRST REPORTS said no one was injured in the Lyon explosion.

GE To Build Plant Here

Factory Construction To Start In January

The General Electric Corporation, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of electrical appliances and equipment, announced today it would soon begin construction of a factory in Circleville whose value has been estimated at $2,500,000.

The announcement, made through the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, which for several weeks has been negotiating to bring the GE division here, said the primary purpose of the new plant will be to manufacture and assemble the extra long type tubes and equipment for flourescent light fixtures.

As an indication of the size of the new factory, arrangements have been made with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. to furnish GE with 3,000 kilowatts of power hourly. This amount of electric current is approximately the same amount used by all of Circleville at the present time.

Plans were outlined for a full-fledged protective society which eventually is to operate a properly-equipped animal shelter and is to have the machinery necessary to prevent and cause punishment for cruelty and neglect of children, animals, and aged persons.

The newly elected officers of the society are: Ralph E. Wallace, president; Fred Moeller, vice-president; and Mrs. Carson Horton, secretary-treasurer.

Wallace named a special committee of four to receive applications for the post of humane officer. The proposed officer is to be acceptable to the mayor of Circleville, the county commissioners, the probate judge, and the mayors of seven incorporated towns in the county. Salary

3-Alarm Fire Hits Cincy

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12—A three-alarm fire of undetermined origin gutted the top three floors of a four-story Cincinnati business building and spread to an adjoining building today before 15 companies of firemen could bring it under control.

The blaze broke out on the third floor of a building in the city's "bottoms" area occupied by an electrical appliance company. Loss was estimated unofficially at $25,000.

LT. STANLEY H. BEER of Philadelphia parachuted to the site of the crash of the C-54 in Labrador, to administer to the six surviving passengers after 23 had been killed. The paratroop doctor jumped with a full medical kit as shown.

Rome Police Clash With Red Strikers

ROME, Dec. 12—Police clashed today with Communist-led strikers who attempted to set up a roadblock on one of Rome's main highways as the government brought in reinforcements to cope with the general strike in the capital.

Police arrested 30 strikers in a melee which prevented the Communists from establishing a roadblock on the Via Nomentana, one of Romes main arteries.

The government moved in strong forces of crack marines and army and navy men in answer to the decision of the Chamber of Labor which voted to continue the general strike in Rome proper and the province of Rome.

The executive of Rome's Chamber of Labor warned the government meanwhile that unless demonstrators arrested yesterday are released immediately "more energetic methods of struggle" will be used.

"Il Popolo," newspaper of the Christian Democratic party, was distributed by youthful volunteers. In an editorial this newspaper proclaimed that the strike was a failure.

Mine Blast Toll Reported At 7

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 12—Death toll from two gas explosions in a Wilkes-Barre colliery rose to seven today as federal and state inspectors sought the cause of the blast.

John Gasper, 25, of Mountain Top, died this morning in Wilkes-Barre hospital. Edmund Oljeski, 42, of Mountain Top, was in critical condition at the same hospital.

Rescue crews also unearthed the body of another victim, Michael Gudaitis, 66, of Wilkes-Barre.

Four miners were killed instantly when the blasts ripped through a vein in the Franklin colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Co. yesterday.

20 Are Killed In Crash Of Army Transport

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 12—A five-man investigating board launched an inquiry today into the crash of an Army C-47 transport plane that carried 20 officers and men to a flaming death as it approached the Memphis municipal airport last night.

The huge craft burst into flames and crashed with a terrific explosion, killing all aboard. The flaming plane cut a swath through a wooded area two miles from the airport near the Mississippi-Tennessee state line.

An eyewitness, Victor White, said he saw a tremendous flash in the air and then heard the terrific blast as the plane plummeted to earth. The scene of the crash is almost a mile from the nearest road.

Capt. C. P. Carmichael, public information officer at the Memphis operations base, said the bodies of all 20 men aboard the plane were removed from the wreckage which was strewn over more than an acre of trees and sagebrush seared by the flaming plane.

Syrian Pledges Palestine Fight

CAIRO, Dec. 12—Syrian Defense Minister Ahmad Charbatti declared today that "the battle for Palestine will begin in 1948."

Charbatti, preparing to return to Damascus following the Arab League council's talks, said that 1948 would mark not only the "liberation of the Holy Land, but the beginning of Arab resurrection." He said:

"It will be like going into a bath—a bloodbath—to come out clean. The stakes are so great, we will spare no effort to achieve victory."

Assembly Eyes Future Policies

Explosion, Wreck Blamed On Commies

PARIS, Dec. 12—France moved swiftly today to "purge" all Communists from government ranks and announced that 20 Soviet secret police operatives have been arrested in connection with the recent strike wave.

With the national assembly in session prepared to decide France's future policy toward Russia in the light of constant Communist agitation, these other developments marked the day:

1—Communist party district headquarters at Lyon was wrecked by a heavy dynamite explosion.

2—Interior Minister Jules Moch warned that the government is ready to take sternest measures. He told the French cabinet that Communist shock troops could return to action "tomorrow" if so ordered.

3—The government of Premier Robert Schuman sought to learn the fate of survivors from a force of 15,000 Alsatians forcefully enrolled in the German army during the war. They are believed now held in Russia.

4—Police investigated possible sabotage in derailment of the car of the Paris-Geneva express near the Swiss border.

9 Patients Flee Hospital Fire

TOLEDO, Dec. 12—Nine persons were forced to flee St. Vincent's hospital here today when a three-alarm fire broke out in the linen chute.

Two of the nine patients were wheeled in their beds from the second floor and another was removed on a stretcher.

None of the inmates was injured, but several were affected by the smoke. Ambulances from other hospitals were rushed to the scene as an emergency precaution.

Murder Verdict Is Returned

DAYTON, Dec. 12—Montgomery County Coroner A. P. McDonald said today that the death of Mrs. Janet McKee, 25-year-old Dayton mother of three children, was murder and the illness of her 32-year-old husband, James, attempted suicide.

The body of Mrs. McKee was found in the front seat of the McKee automobile. She had been shot to death.

sion, although a number of buildings were wrecked or damaged. This anti-Communist outbreak formed a backdrop to the tense assembly discussions.

The chief topic on the agenda was the steady deterioriation in relations between France and Soviet relations which some observers say might lead to a full diplomatic rupture.

Arrest of the 20 Soviet agents came at a moment when France still was highly disturbed over Soviet action in expelling the French repatriation mission and cancelling trade talks with France.

According to a member of the Socialist party's executive committee, Moch told a committee meeting that all of the Russians were caught "red-handed."

Moch said the prisoners are being held incommunicado and are being questioned to establish any official Soviet role in the recent strikes. Moch had publicly branded this movement as open "insurrection."

In connection with the "purge" it was learned that Schuman wants to clear from the police force and all other government agencies all persons of Communist leanings who might have access to state secrets.

MEANWHILE, another delicate point at issue between France and Russia is the Beauregard repatriation camp for Soviet citizens. Located near Paris, this camp already has been raided on suspicion that it was being used as a communication point for sabotage and espionage.

Now, the French government has charged that the Russians transferred at least 60 French citizens to Soviet territory without the knowledge of French officials, using Beauregard as a channel.

A formal protest and demand for explanation has been sent to Moscow.

Applications for humane officer must be submitted in writing not later than Jan. 1 and should be mailed to Wallace, in care of the Wallace bakery, 127 West Main street.

The Junior Chamber helped with the preliminary formation of the society more than a year ago and advanced funds necessary to charter the society as a non-profit corporation.

Under Ohio laws the society is entitled to financial support from incorporated towns in the county and from the county.

The biggest job the organization will tackle will be to foster the humane care and handling of stray and homeless dogs and other domestic animals.

The organization was set up July 11, 1946, followed an expose of intolerable conditions at Pickaway county's dog pound.

The GOP program and the Walcott bill is to come up for approval by all Republican senators at a conference tomorrow. Sen. Baldwin (R) Conn., indicated there may be some trouble in store for the leadership.

The freshman senator laid down his own ideas of what congress should do. They include a proposal for "standby" rationing of wheat, meat and other short materials—vigorously opposed by Republican leaders.

Lucas said of the GOP bill: "It indicates the state of confusion of the Republican party and demonstrates its inability to cope with this economic crisis. It is apparent that they are still taking orders from the National Association of Manufacturers.

"President Truman has done about everything that can be done through persuasive efforts and still price go skyrocketing. How the Republican majority expects to cope with inflation with these four futile and puny proposals is more than I can comprehend."

3 Thugs Linked To Club Holdup

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12—Three captured gunmen, possible suspects in the $500,000 Mounds Club holdup, were identified by witnesses here today and held responsible for at least a dozen big holdups in Ohio in recent months.

The bandits were captured by Akron police and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents yesterday.

The prisoners, Roman Oponowicz, 29, his brother, Alfred, 23, and Raymond Jones, 25, all of Cleveland, were identified as the robbers of a night club in suburban Shaker Heights which was looted of $1,300 a few weeks ago.

The two ambushed Jewish trucks were laden with members of Haganah, the army of the Jewish agency.

Nine of the victims were killed outright. The tenth died in flames when the vehicles were set afire.

Arabs from adjacent villages swooped down on the trucks which were part of a convoy and set off an orgy of shootings and knifings.

Troops accompanying the convoy staved off the Arabs in a 45 minute battle until their ammunition ran out.

There were reports meanwhile that Arab policemen, who are regular members of the Palestine constabulary, are deserting their posts to join with gangs of guerrillas in assaults against Jews from concealed hideouts.

of the officer has not yet been determined.

THE COMMITTEE is composed of William Kellstadt, Joseph W. Adkins, Moeller and Wallace.

Applications for humane officer must be submitted in writing not later than Jan. 1 and should be mailed to Wallace, in care of the Wallace bakery, 127 West Main street.

Following the election of officers Fred S. Grant reported that the Junior Chamber, of Commerce had $250 on deposit in the bank for transfer to the society. It was explained that the money had been raised to give the society a financial start.

The Junior Chamber helped with the preliminary formation of the society more than a year ago and advanced funds necessary to charter the society as a non-profit corporation.

Under Ohio laws the society is entitled to financial support from incorporated towns in the county and from the county.

The biggest job the organization will tackle will be to foster the humane care and handling of stray and homeless dogs and other domestic animals.

The organization was set up July 11, 1946, followed an expose of intolerable conditions at Pickaway county's dog pound.

broad objectives they will tackle in the regular session next year.

The GOP program and the Walcott bill is to come up for approval by all Republican senators at a conference tomorrow. Sen. Baldwin (R) Conn., indicated there may be some trouble in store for the leadership.

The freshman senator laid down his own ideas of what congress should do. They include a proposal for "standby" rationing of wheat, meat and other short materials—vigorously opposed by Republican leaders.

Lucas said of the GOP bill:

"It indicates the state of confusion of the Republican party and demonstrates its inability to cope with this economic crisis. It is apparent that they are still taking orders from the National Association of Manufacturers.

"President Truman has done about everything that can be done through persuasive efforts and still price go skyrocketing. How the Republican majority expects to cope with inflation with these four futile and puny proposals is more than I can comprehend."

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12—Three captured gunmen, possible susects in the $500,000 Mounds Club holdup, were identified by witnesses here today and held responsible for at least a dozen big holdups in Ohio in recent months.

The bandits were captured by Akron police and Federal Bureau of Investigation agents yesterday.

The prisoners, Roman Oponowicz, 29, his brother, Alfred, 23, and Raymond Jones, 25, all of Cleveland, were identified as the robbers of a night club in suburban Shaker Heights which was looted of $1,300 a few weeks ago.

Phillips Field at Aberdeen, Md. It had taken off from Biggs Field and was preparing to land at the Memphis airport when the tragedy occurred.

Eyewitnesses said the huge plane's engines which were cutting on and off just before it exploded, burst into flames and plummeted to earth only two miles from its goal.

The big craft plowed into a group of trees and then crashed against a hillside

The Memphis air tragedy was the second big military air crash within two days to cost 20 or more lives.

Last Tuesday, 23 persons were killed when a plane of the Air Transport Command crashed at Goose Bay, Labrador. Unlike the Memphis crash, there were six survivors in the Labrador tragedy.

Bloody Day Seen Again In Palestine

estimated force of 80 Arabs ambushed two Jewish trucks near Bethlehem during the night.

The two ambushed Jewish trucks were laden with members of Haganah, the army of the Jewish agency.

Nine of the victims were killed outright. The tenth died in flames when the vehicles were set afire.

Arabs from adjacent villages swooped down on the trucks which were part of a convoy and set off an orgy of shootings and knifings.

Troops accompanying the convoy staved off the Arabs in a 45 minute battle until their ammunition ran out.

There were reports meanwhile that Arab policemen, who are regular members of the Palestine constabulary, are deserting their posts to join with gangs of guerrillas in assaults against Jews from concealed hideouts.

GOP Finds Third Party Idea May Hurt Them

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12—The prospect of Henry Wallace sparking a third party ticket in 1948 this week suddenly ceased being a cause for hallelulahs from Republican leaders and became instead a cause for doubtful consideration.

For recently it has become quite clear that a third party in next year's elections might attract more than a group of aggravated left-wing Democratic votes.

It might also woo a lot of recalcitrant Republican lambs from the party fold. If that happened, it would result in the splitting of both major parties, rather than the scuttling of just one.

It has all come about in a curious fashion.

Originally, it was generally considered in high party councils that Wallace was the one man who could insure Harry Truman's defeat in 1948—assuming, of course, that the President would seek reelection.

THAT DID not mean that Wallace would be elected, in the event that he even bothered to run. He wouldn't be. But he might manage to pull away enough of the old die-hard New Deal element of the Democratic party to split the vote adequately for a Republican victory.

That's the situation the Republicans have been hoping for—until recently. And it's easy to see why.

For instance, should Wallace come out as a third party presidential candidate next year, Mr. Truman's chances of carrying California—just to name three key states— would be so low as to prevent most practical betting book-makers from taking any wagers at all on the issue—under normal circumstances, that is.

Under those aforementioned "normal" circumstances, they would assume that the split thus wedged in Democratic party ranks would insure victory for the Republican candidate in those states.

And, if you inspect with care the electoral college voting system, it becomes apparent that a few such states as those could quickly swing the election, one way or the other.

But suddenly a new elment has entered the picture. No longer is a possible third party merely a threat to Democrats.

The reason is that, on Capitol Hill, recently the Republicans have split wide open. On one side is the group led by Senator Bob Taft, who is and has been (for years) an obvious eventual candidate for the presidency. On the other side are those Republican senators and representatives who have no use whatever for Taft's policies or assumed party domination.

IN fact, some of them resent quite strongly most of Taft's attempts to speak for them or the party.

The result, of course, is that a rift is developing in the Republican party equivalent to that in the Democratic party.

The rebels of the GOP, naturally, are those freshmen senators and representatives who feel that they came to participate in law-making and not to suffer like fraternity initiates during their first term. Unfortunately for the Republican party, that's the way the old guard treated them during the first session of this eightieth congress.

They're not going to take it this time—if for no other reason than that they know they carry the balance of power. After all, they were the ones elected who gave the balance of power to the GOP, and they know it. And they aim to be heard.

Few of those recalcitrant Republicans would support a Democratic ticket during the next election. But they might become so tired at what they now call "the reactionary attitude" of their own guard that they would play along with a third party candidate—even if it were Wallace or some protege of his.

That's why, once again, the Wallace and third party boomerang is back with us, politically speaking.

Brehm Favors Tax Slash At Next Session

Rep. Walter E. Brehm, Logan, favors the new tax reduction bill which is expected to come before congress next month.

Other Ohio Republicans in the house also are expected to thow their full support behind the measure, a sampling of opinion indicated.

Dr. Brehm, who represents the 11th congressional district including Pickaway county, was quoted.

"I very definitely am in favor of a tax reduction as are most of the people back in my district. I look for the new bill to come up early in the regular session and think it has a better chance of passing over the President's veto this time. We must cut government expenses and get rid of the bureaucrats."

The house ways and means committee, has had a $4 billion tax cut ptoposal before it for weeks.

The bill, according to reports, will raise individual exemptions from the present $500 to $600 and provide for a general lowering of rates.

The new measure also is expected to embody a community property provision, permitting husbands and wives to divide the family income equally for income tax purposes.

Congress failed to pass a tax bill over President Truman's veto in the last session.

At least one Democrat from the Buckeye state, Rep .ubHer (D-Akron), is opposed to any such reduction "in principle" and another, Rep. Feighan (D-Cleveland), says he's waiting to "see what type of bill" is offered.

GOING BY TRAIN

FOR NEARLY 100 years, because of the invention of George Pullman, overnight railroad travelers using upper and lower berths have had to dress and undress in positions that would do credit to circus contortionists. Now, private rooms are to be the thing. The many other discomforts long endured by the traveling public are to be replaced by arrangements which actually consider passenger convenience.

The new "astra" or "vista dome", a kind of glass-roofed car, as well as wide and better placed windows will permit pleasant viewing of the passing countryside. Seats with full length leg room and individual reading lights as well as coach-to-coach doors that can be easily opened are some of the promises held out to travelers in this new age of railroading that is dawning.

The railroads have been much criticized for outdated equipment and techniques. Their recent excuse has been the war. True, their transporting of troops and military material was a great job. But even before the war, railroads had become a bit smug, not to say haughty, about passengers. They appeared to be more interested in getting a carload of freight across the country than a carload of comfortable people. They are learning that people can be profitable, too. Soon it will be fun, besides being comfortable, to go by train.

LIFE ON MARS?

IS THERE life on Mars? This long debated question may possibly find an answer now that the California Institute of Technology has a 200-inch telescope, the largest ever. It is really a camera rather than a telescope, and will take pictures of the world of space. The hope is that it will provide enough light to take the first snapshot of Mars. Previous observations have been blurred by a constant shimmer.

The question which the telescope may solve is the nature of certain irregular long lines which the American astronomer, Percival Lowell, thought were artificial, perhaps canals to carry water from the melting ice of the Martian poles. They might be that, or they might be cracks in the planet's surface.

It would be exciting to find evidence of intelligent life on another planet, but even if it exists, it is not likely that the Martians have solved our problems.

The railroads want an increase in freight rates, and food goes up steadily. Labor has some excuse when it pleads that today's pay no longer supports the family. All these increases, however, add up to only one thing: further inflation—and a bust.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

When a small boy, I went to school on Broome street on the lower East Side of New York. There may have been a Christian child in my class but I do not recall any such unusual being. We were all Jewish children; our parents were immigrants from Poland, Russia, Galicia and such places.

Nevertheless, when Christmas came, as it did each year we learned to sing Christmas carols and we had a Christmas tree and we gave our teacher Christmas presents. Our parents did not object; maybe they were too hard-working and too happy to be in this land of freedom to bother with such details.

Nearly always, just about Christmas time, we would also celebrate Hannukah, the Feast of the Maccabees, which was quite merry, particularly as we would be given presents and we ate lots of potato pancakes. It was a season of great merriment and it was all especially good for little children.

So I was shocked when I read that an assistant superintendent of schools in New York had forbidden the singing of Christmas carols in the public schools under his jurisdiction. Then it appeared that he had been misunderstood and that what he reallly meant was that it was to be left to each principal to decide what to do. And all kinds of people had their say about it.

Really, this was a stupid bit of very bad judgment, inevitable in the total secularization of education where they teach all sorts of scientific superstitions and mythology but become frightened lest a child learn that there is a God who has given Man conscience and will and the capacity to understand the difference between right and wrong. What harm can it do a Jewish child to sing a Christmas carol or a Christian child to learn of the heroism of Judas Macabeus?

If we are God's children, may we not learn each other's songs? Or are we not God's children? Are we only a beachworm evolved into man by some trickiness of nature while other worms just remained worms? Is it less superstitious to believe the worm theory than the Adam and Eve theory?

How much more logical is Sam Goldwyn's "The Bishop's Wife," When this child from the Warsaw ghetto told me that this was his greatest picture, I could not but feel that Sam was promoting another Hollywood exaggeration. But after I saw it, I realized that truly one must feel the presence of God to produce such a Christmas Tale. And it was taken from a book by Robert Nathan, a Jew.

They must believe in miracles or they could not have done so magnificently in motion pictures with the miraculous resurgence of love. For is it now love—the love not only of man for woman, but of all men for all men, of all that is human for all that is human—that we need most to cure this world of its ailments?

This "The Bishop's Wife" tells so simply and truly and understandingly. True, Hollywood must tell it in its own way, using the implements and dimensions that it has at hand; yet, never for a moment is the all-enduring Christmas message of love lost. For that is the whole message of Christmas.

DIET AND HEALTH

When Polio Occurs in Mild Form

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PUBLIC health officials, who are always concerned about the extent and spread of any disease which may affect large communities, have for a long time suspected that infantile paralysis or poliomyelitis is a much more common disease than is generally believed.

During the summer and fall of 1945 and in the same period of 1946, the Chicago Health Department carried out studies which not only tend to confirm this idea but which also may point the way to better control of the disease.

A Mild Form

As a result of this work it seems definitely established that infantile paralysis frequently occurs in a very mild form. In fact, the symptoms may be so mild that it is difficult to make a diagnosis.

For example, a patient may only have a little stiffness of the muscles of the neck and back, a slight fever and headache, without the development of paralysis. Other cases may have vomiting, but all of these mild symptoms seem to clear up rapidly.

Unaware of Infection

It is entirely probable that many people have had a mild form of poliomyelitis some time during their lives and were never aware of the infection. In fact, there are many who believe that this disease in its mild form may be as common as any of the other "catching" diseases, such as chicken-pox or measles.

The studies which were made also seem to show that children in intimate contact with a person three days before to three days after he develops poliomyelitis are likely to contract the disease if they had not had it before. The large majority of those who do get the condition, as I have mentioned, have it in the mild form without any paralysis.

Few Have Paralysis

It is interesting to note that in all of the cases studied, only about two out of every hundred have paralysis from which they do not recover completely. In other words, it seems evident that about 98 per cent of poliomyelitis is a widespread, mild, "catching" disease of young children which leaves no paralysis, and that not more than one child out of forty or fifty is affected with permanent paralysis.

These facts point to certain precautions which might do much to keep an outbreak of the disease confined to a small area.

Isolation Period

If all children exposed to a known case of infantile paralysis were isolated for a period up to two weeks, many other youngsters would be spared contact with it. Mild, unrecognized cases could not then pass the disease on to others who might have it in its more serious forms. Thus, it might be that disastrous epidemics might be stopped almost before they got started.

Taking the temperature of these exposed children each day would help to diagnose poliomyelitis early, should it develop.

This year the number of cases of poliomyelitis which have occurred are far less than in the last four or five years. It is, of course, impossible to predict just when another widespread epidemic of the disease may develop. In the meantime, research is continuing in an effort to find ways and means for preventing and curing this disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. P.: About three months ago a bald spot about the size of a half dollar appeared near the crown of my head. What is the cause of this condition?

Answer: It is likely that you have what is known as alopecia areata.

The exact cause of this condition is not known. There are two theories, both of which may be correct. One points to a parasite; the other to a neurotic origin.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"OH, BILL'S talked about you, too," confided Elaine. "Bill thinks you're the gal that hung the stars and polished the moon and sees to it that the sun comes up on schedule every morning."

Color flowed into Cathy's face and her eyes were starry.

"Too bad," Elaine went on coolly, before Cathy could manage her voice for an answer, "that Aunt Edith holds the purse strings so tight and that she's so hell-bent on choosing Bill's wife for him. Of course, I suppose you think Bill's a bit of a wart because he doesn't tell her to take her money and go to blazes with it. But Bill feels—and I think he's quite right—that he is entitled to at least a generous share."

"Why are you telling me all this?"

Elaine seemed tardily to realize the extent of her frankness and for a moment her lovely face closed up, as though a curtain had been drawn, leaving her expressionless.

"Oh, I dunno," she said carelessly. "Everybody says I talk too much, anyway. Could be they're right."

The waitress came with their order. Elaine fussed over hers and the waitress took it back and changed it. But eventually it was satisfactory, and the waitress departed.

Elaine spoke after a moment. "Your Major's quite swell, Cathy. I like him."

"I'm glad—only he's not my Major," answered Cathy, striving for a light tone.

Elaine looked up at her sharply, her blue eyes speculative.

"Is that on the level? You're not—overboard about him? You aren't going to marry him?" she demanded.

"Certainly not! He's merely a very good friend; we went through a lot together in the Pacific. I was a flight nurse and we flew together a lot," answered Cathy almost breathlessly.

Elaine studied her shrewdly.

"Is it true he's disgustingly rich?" she demanded.

"I'm afraid I wouldn't know," answered Cathy curtly.

"He's a pal of yours and you don't know whether he's a millionaire or a pauper?" exclaimed Elaine unbelievingly.

"All I knew about him was that he was a darned good pilot, and that we were all working for the same boss!" said Cathy, and there was color in her cheeks. "We all shared a common lot, whether we had millions in the bank back home, or dependents who existed merely by reason of the allotment checks we were able to send home. Believe it or not, there was very little time—and very little inclination—to sit down and talk about what we had back home. We were too darned busy trying to keep it—home and safe—to worry about who was rich and who was poor—"

She broke off, realizing that her voice was shaking, and steadied herself.

Elaine had been looking at her curiously, her head ever so little on one side.

"Funny," she commented at last. "I swear I believe you meant that!"

"Thanks!" said Cathy grimly. "I didn't mean to—to sound off. But I get so tired of people here at home thinking we had nothing to do out there but sit around and make love and talk about our social positions!"

Elaine nodded thoughtfully.

"I see what you mean," she said almost carelessly, her thoughts busy elsewhere, as was evidenced by her next words. "Look here, if you're not in love with the Major, and have no matrimonial aspirations in his direction, do you mind if I make a few passes at him? I believe I could do myself some good with him! I think he liked me at the dance."

Cathy blinked, so astounded that for a moment she could not catch her breath or manage speech.

Elaine grinned impishly.

"You see, I can always tell when a man could be persuaded to like me quite a lot. I think the major could, and—well, it would be fun to see what might happen," she drawled.

Suddenly Cathy was swept with a quite illogical anger.

"Mark is a very fine man, with a wonderful future, and a lot of ambition," she said slowly and distinctly. "I won't have you trying to make a fool of him."

Elaine's eyebrows went up delicately.

"Then you do think I could," she suggested gently.

Cathy's regard took her in: the shoulder-length hair that was silken pale gold, curling away from her vivid, oval face; the great darkly blue eyes with their long, gold-tipped lashes; the exquisitely curved body in its powder blue sharkskin frock that set off a pale, honey-gold tan so deft and so exquisitely balanced one knew instantly it came from a sun lamp.

"I think you could," said Cathy briefly, and added with a little flash of her eyes, "Only I intend to stop you, if I possibly can."

Elaine pushed her tea cup away from her and folded her arms on the edge of the table and studied Cathy indolently, like a sleek, well-fed cat with an eye on the family canary.

"You don't look the dog-in-the-manger type, Cathy," she drawled. "I would have thought that one man would be quite enough for you—especially if the man was Bill."

"I'm not in love with Mark." Cathy stated her position flatly. "But I admire and respect and like him enormously. And I don't propose to sit idly by and watch you sniping for him—unless you're in love with him, of course."

Elaine pursed her lovely mouth and then smiled.

"Oh—love," she scoffed. "I'm afraid I don't believe in love. Oh, being fond of people and liking being with them and stuff like that—but all this agonizing because the boy friend smiled at another girl or forgot to telephone or seems to be cooling off in his ardor—that's something to write gooey songs about, or stick in the movies for middle-aged matrons to sigh over. But not for little Elaine. I know where I want to go, and I intend to get there, and nothing's going to stop me—nothing as silly and mushy as what you call love, anyway!"

She looked up at Cathy, and before Cathy could speak, Elaine gave her an impish grin.

"And to tell the truth, I believe your Major is a realist, too," she said.

"I keep telling you he isn't my Major—"

"But you keep behaving as if he were!"

"And I don't know what you mean by calling him a 'realist,'" Cathy finished.

Elaine shrugged.

"Oh, I don't think he goes in for the lovey-dovey stuff, any more than I do," she explained. "I believe that he would look on marriage as something that might be fun, and all that, but not necessarily a life-and-death matter. I think he's the sort of man who would say across the breakfast table some bright morning, 'See here, my pet, you bore the living daylights out of me, and I know you're fed up to the teeth with me, so how's about calling it a day, while you hop out to Reno or Mexico City and buy yourself a nice little gilt-edged divorce?' And I'm the sort of girl who would say promptly, 'Thanks a lot for the idea. I'd love it.' And nobody's feelings would be hurt in the least! That's what I mean by saying I think the Major is a realist."

Cathy was staring at her, shocked.

"Oh, but—why, Elaine, that's not true! Mark's not like that at all," she protested.

Elaine looked at her coolly for a moment.

"Want to bet on it?" she offered.

Anger boiled over in Cathy. "I do not! And if that's the attitude you have toward Mark, then I'd appreciate it a lot if you'd leave him alone."

Elaine continued looking at her, her lovely eyes cool, narrowed a little; and then she nodded and scrubbed out the tip of her cigaret and said coolly, "So you are in love with him!"

"I'm not. Don't be silly."

"Of course you are," said Elaine. "And I wonder where that leaves Bill? He's pretty crazy about you, believe it or not."

Cathy drew a long hard breath and clenched her hands tightly in her lap, fighting to steady her voice, before she risked speech.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Jane Wyatt

NEW YORK—To those of us who are a little dubious about the right fork to select when we sit down to dine in any place higher-priced than the Automat, the best-known member of the Wyatt family of New York is dark-haired Jane, who is a moo'm pitcher actress.

They still talk about Jane's performance in the film "Lost Horizon," although in recent seasons she has concentrated less on acting and more on rearing her two children, whose names are typically Noel Cowardian — Michael and Christopher.

It is likely, though, that the most remarkable of the Wyatts is an energetic, chic, gray-haired one still living in midtown Manhattan whose name, all wool and two yards wide, is Mrs. Euphemia van Rensselaer Waddington Wyatt.

Mrs. Wyatt is the fair Jane's mother and, in a town figuratively and literally lousy with blue blood, she is so social it hurts. True, her ancestors did not form a welcoming committee for the Mayflower voyagers, but one of them was around long enough ago to sell Albany to the Indians—later helping Colonial troops take it back again, which is a nice daily double.

There are Wyatts and van Rensselaers spilling from many pages of the Social Register; they are members of things like the Colonial Dames of America and in their youth they attend such things as Miss Chapin's School.

* * * *

I REMEMBER JANE TELLING ME about her mother, one day in a darkling corner of Twenty-One. "My father," Jane said, "was a broker and irreverent. Because my mother was devout and stagestruck, my father used to say that if he ever had a son he undoubtedly would be either a priest or actor. He did have a son but he became a radio technician, which is quite another thing.

"There were four of us children—Monica, Elizabeth, Christopher and myself—and we lived in a big red brick house at 13 Lexington avenue. It was a lovely house and I remember making my debut there at a supper dance, but what set it apart from other big houses is that it was full of theatrical atmosphere.

"My mother once wrote a play called 'Monica,' which John Golden produced, and Elizabeth and I never were discouraged when we earnestly announced our intentions of entering ballet and the theater. I am sure mother was secretly pleased."

The Wyatts gave plays at home for their friends, written by Elizabeth, directed by Mrs. Wyatt and starring Jane. Other Social Registerites were exploring bootleg gin's possibilities; the Wyatts explored the theater. In 1929 Jane made her debut, and it was around the same time that tragedy split the red brick mansion on Lexington avenue. Mr. Wyatt lost his money and killed himself.

Mrs. E. V. R. W. Wyatt was left with four children and not too much money. The problem was tough but it was solved. Mrs. W. opened a boarding house.

"This was no ordinary boarding house," Jane told me. "The tenants were actors—budding movie stars, stagestruck models, artists, writers, painters. My dear, the Wyatt boarding house was one of the most brilliant joints of our time. Out in Hollywood I am forever meeting film stars who say, 'Oh, I used to live at your mother's place in New York'."

* * * *

IN TIME THE DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT appropriated the Lexington avenue house, but Mrs. E. V. R. W. W. merely moved uptown. She couldn't stand being cooped up, Jane said, so "she figured the best way to live in a big house was to rent part of it out."

However, running a rooming joint, as Jane put it, was only one facet of Mrs. Wyatt's life. For years she has been a drama critic for the Catholic World—and a number of times has had to review Jane's work.

"Come to think of it," Jane said, "she never HAS praised or damned me too much. She's worse. She never mentions me much."

It has been Jane's habit whenever she was in New York, to board with her mother, eating the house breakfast at 10 and dinner at 7, when the coming geniuses of the world argue sex, life, love and the Democratic party.

What the Social Register people think of all this I do not know, but they go on printing the Wyatt names year after year, so I guess they just are cowed. Jane was tossed out of the S. R. at one time but got right back in, in 1935, by marrying Edgard B. Ward, which is similar to the trick accomplished by socialite Whitney Bourne when she married Stanton Griffis.

Jane likes corned beef and cabbage and buys second-hand clothes from friends. Is that whirring noise General Vanderbilt rotating rapidly in his grave?

GOING BY TRAIN

FOR NEARLY 100 years, because of the invention of George Pullman, overnight railroad travelers using upper and lower berths have had to dress and undress in positions that would do credit to circus contortionists. Now, private rooms are to be the thing. The many other discomforts long endured by the traveling public are to be replaced by arrangements which actually consider passenger convenience.

The new "astra" or "vista dome", a kind of glass-roofed car, as well as wide and better placed windows will permit pleasant viewing of the passing countryside. Seats with full length leg room and individual reading lights as well as coach-to-coach doors that can be easily opened are some of the promises held out to travelers in this new age of railroading that is dawning.

The railroads have been much criticized for outdated equipment and techniques. Their recent excuse has been the war. True, their transporting of troops and military material was a great job. But even before the war, railroads had become a bit smug, not to say haughty, about passengers. They appeared to be more interested in getting a carload of freight across the country than a carload of comfortable people. They are learning that people can be profitable, too. Soon it will be fun, besides being comfortable, to go by train.

LIFE ON MARS?

IS THERE life on Mars? This long debated question may possibly find an answer now that the California Institute of Technology has a 200-inch telescope, the largest ever. It is really a camera rather than a telescope, and will take pictures of the world of space. The hope is that it will provide enough light to take the first snapshot of Mars. Previous observations have been blurred by a constant shimmer.

The question which the telescope may solve is the nature of certain irregular long lines which the American astronomer, Percival Lowell, thought were artificial, perhaps canals to carry water from the melting ice of the Martian poles. They might be that, or they might be cracks in the planet's surface.

It would be exciting to find evidence of intelligent life on another planet, but even if it exists, it is not likely that the Martians have solved our problems.

The railroads want an increase in freight rates, and food goes up steadily. Labor has some excuse when it pleads that today's pay no longer supports the family. All these increases, however, add up to only one thing: further inflation—and a bust.

When Polio Occurs in Mild Form

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PUBLIC health officials, who are always concerned about the extent and spread of any disease which may affect large communities, have for a long time suspected that infantile paralysis or poliomyelitis is a much more common disease than is generally believed.

During the summer and fall of 1945 and in the same period of 1946, the Chicago Health Department carried out studies which not only tend to confirm this idea but which also may point the way to better control of the disease.

A Mild Form

As a result of this work it seems definitely established that infantile paralysis frequently occurs in a very mild form. In fact, the symptoms may be so mild that it is difficult to make a diagnosis.

For example, a patient may only have a little stiffness of the muscles of the neck and back, a slight fever and headache, without the development of paralysis. Other cases may have vomiting, but all of these mild symptoms seem to clear up rapidly.

Unaware of Infection

It is entirely probable that many people have had a mild form of poliomyelitis some time during their lives and were never aware of the infection. In fact, there are many who believe that this disease in its mild form may be as common as any of the other "catching" diseases, such as chicken-pox or measles.

The studies which were made also seem to show that children in intimate contact with a person three days before to three days after he develops poliomyelitis are likely to contract the disease if they had not had it before. The large majority of those who do get the condition, as I have mentioned, have it in the mild form without any paralysis.

Few Have Paralysis

It is interesting to note that in all of the cases studied, only about two out of every hundred have paralysis from which they do not recover completely. In other words, it seems evident that about 98 per cent of poliomyelitis is a widespread, mild, "catching" disease of young children which leaves no paralysis, and that not more than one child out of forty or fifty is affected with permanent paralysis.

These facts point to certain precautions which might do much to keep an outbreak of the disease confined to a small area.

Isolation Period

If all children exposed to a known case of infantile paralysis were isolated for a period up to two weeks, many other youngsters would be spared contact with it. Mild, unrecognized cases could not then pass the disease on to others who might have it in its more serious forms. Thus, it might be that disastrous epidemics might be stopped almost before they got started.

Taking the temperature of these exposed children each day would help to diagnose poliomyelitis early, should it develop.

This year the number of cases of poliomyelitis which have occurred are far less than in the last four or five years. It is, of course, impossible to predict just when another widespread epidemic of the disease may develop. In the meantime, research is continuing in an effort to find ways and means for preventing and curing this disease.

Mrs. P.: About three months ago a bald spot about the size of a half dollar appeared near the crown of my head. What is the cause of this condition?

Answer: It is likely that you have what is known as alopecia areata.

The exact cause of this condition is not known. There are two theories, both of which may be correct. One points to a parasite; the other to a neurotic origin.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

"OH, BILL'S talked about you, too," confided Elaine. "Bill thinks you're the gal that hung the stars and polished the moon and sees to it that the sun comes up on schedule every morning."

Color flowed into Cathy's face and her eyes were starry.

"Too bad," Elaine went on coolly, before Cathy could manage her voice for an answer, "that Aunt Edith holds the purse strings so tight and that she's so hell-bent on choosing Bill's wife for him. Of course, I suppose you think Bill's a bit of a wart because he doesn't tell her to take her money and go to blazes with it. But Bill feels—and I think he's quite right—that he is entitled to at least a generous share."

"Why are you telling me all this?"

Elaine seemed tardily to realize the extent of her frankness and for a moment her lovely face closed up, as though a curtain had been drawn, leaving her expressionless.

"Oh, I dunno," she said carelessly. "Everybody says I talk too much, anyway. Could be they're right."

The waitress came with their order. Elaine fussed over hers and the waitress took it back and changed it. But eventually it was satisfactory, and the waitress departed.

Elaine spoke after a moment. "Your Major's quite swell, Cathy. I like him."

"I'm glad—only he's not my Major," answered Cathy, striving for a light tone.

Elaine looked up at her sharply, her blue eyes speculative.

"Is that on the level? You're not—overboard about him? You aren't going to marry him?" she demanded.

"Certainly not! He's merely a very good friend; we went through a lot together in the Pacific. I was a flight nurse and we flew together a lot," answered Cathy almost breathlessly.

Elaine studied her shrewdly.

"Is it true he's disgustingly rich?" she demanded.

"I'm afraid I wouldn't know," answered Cathy curtly.

"He's a pal of yours and you don't know whether he's a millionaire or a pauper?" exclaimed Elaine unbelievingly.

"All I knew about him was that he was a darned good pilot, and that we were all working for the same boss!" said Cathy, and there was color in her cheeks. "We all shared a common lot, whether we had millions in the bank back home, or dependents who existed merely by reason of the allotment checks we were able to send home. Believe it or not, there was very little time—and very little inclination—to sit down and talk about what we had back home. We were too darned busy trying to keep it—home and safe—to worry about who was rich and who was poor—"

She broke off, realizing that her voice was shaking, and steadied herself.

Elaine had been looking at her curiously, her head ever so little on one side.

"Funny," she commented at last. "I swear I believe you meant that!"

"Thanks!" said Cathy grimly. "I didn't mean to—to sound off. But I get so tired of people here at home thinking we had nothing to do out there but sit around and make love and talk about our social positions!"

Elaine nodded thoughtfully.

"I see what you mean," she said almost carelessly, her thoughts busy elsewhere, as was evidenced by her next words. "Look here, if you're not in love with the Major, and have no matrimonial aspirations in his direction, do you mind if I make a few passes at him? I believe I could do myself some good with him! I think he liked me at the dance."

Cathy blinked, so astounded that for a moment she could not catch her breath or manage speech.

Elaine grinned impishly.

"You see, I can always tell when a man could be persuaded to like me quite a lot. I think the major could, and—well, it would be fun to see what might happen," she drawled.

Suddenly Cathy was swept with a quite illogical anger.

"Mark is a very fine man, with a wonderful future, and a lot of ambition," she said slowly and distinctly. "I won't have you trying to make a fool of him."

Elaine's eyebrows went up delicately.

"Then you do think I could," she suggested gently.

Cathy's regard took her in: the shoulder-length hair that was silken pale gold, curling away from her vivid, oval face; the great darkly blue eyes with their long, gold-tipped lashes; the exquisitely curved body in its powder blue sharkskin frock that set off a pale, honey-gold tan so deft and so exquisitely balanced one knew instantly it came from a sun lamp.

"I think you could," said Cathy briefly, and added with a little flash of her eyes, "Only I intend to stop you, if I possibly can."

Elaine pushed her tea cup away from her and folded her arms on the edge of the table and studied Cathy indolently, like a sleek, well-fed cat with an eye on the family canary.

"You don't look the dog-in-the-manger type, Cathy," she drawled. "I would have thought that one man would be quite enough for you—especially if the man was Bill."

"I'm not in love with Mark." Cathy stated her position flatly. "But I admire and respect and like him enormously. And I don't propose to sit idly by and watch you sniping for him—unless you're in love with him, of course."

Elaine pursed her lovely mouth and then smiled.

"Oh—love," she scoffed. "I'm afraid I don't believe in love. Oh, being fond of people and liking being with them and stuff like that—but all this agonizing because the boy friend smiled at another girl or forgot to telephone or seems to be cooling off in his ardor—that's something to write gooey songs about, or stick in the movies for middle-aged matrons to sigh over. But not for little Elaine. I know where I want to go, and I intend to get there, and nothing's going to stop me—nothing as silly and mushy as what you call love, anyway!"

She looked up at Cathy, and before Cathy could speak, Elaine gave her an impish grin.

"And to tell the truth, I believe your Major is a realist, too," she said.

"I keep telling you he isn't my Major—"

"But you keep behaving as if he were!"

"And I don't know what you mean by calling him a 'realist,'" Cathy finished.

Elaine shrugged.

"Oh, I don't think he goes in for the lovey-dovey stuff, any more than I do," she explained. "I believe that he would look on marriage as something that might be fun, and all that, but not necessarily a life-and-death matter. I think he's the sort of man who would say across the breakfast table some bright morning, 'See here, my pet, you bore the living daylights out of me, and I know you're fed up to the teeth with me, so how's about calling it a day, while you hop out to Reno or Mexico City and buy yourself a nice little gilt-edged divorce?' And I'm the sort of girl who would say promptly, 'Thanks a lot for the idea. I'd love it.' And nobody's feelings would be hurt in the least! That's what I mean by saying I think the Major is a realist."

Cathy was staring at her, shocked.

"Oh, but—why, Elaine, that's not true! Mark's not like that at all," she protested.

Elaine looked at her coolly for a moment.

"Want to bet on it?" she offered.

Anger boiled over in Cathy. "I do not! And if that's the attitude you have toward Mark, then I'd appreciate it a lot if you'd leave him alone."

Elaine continued looking at her, her lovely eyes cool, narrowed a little; and then she nodded and scrubbed out the tip of her cigaret and said coolly, "So you are in love with him!"

"I'm not. Don't be silly."

"Of course you are," said Elaine. "And I wonder where that leaves Bill? He's pretty crazy about you, believe it or not."

Cathy drew a long hard breath and clenched her hands tightly in her lap, fighting to steady her voice, before she risked speech.

One-Minute Test

1. Where is the Gulf of California?
2. What is the name of the narrow strip of land between Africa and Asia?
3. What is the name of the great shoal in the Atlantic ocean lying off the coast of Newfoundland, famous as a fishing ground?

Words of Wisdom

Gaiety and a light heart, in all virtue and decorum, are the best medicine for the young, or rather for all. Solitude and melancholy are poison; they are deadly to all, and above all to the young.—Talfourd.

Hints on Etiquette

If you are carrying a long umbrella, do be careful not to spear anyone with it. If you carry an umbrella with a traveling bag with the umbrella held in a horizontal position, it is likely to poke people behind you.

Today's Horoscope

A birthday today means that you are honest, loving, persevering and unyielding. You are sympathetic, kind, helpful and generous, self-confident and accomplish most of the things you undertake. Your happy-go-lucky manner makes you a favorite with everyone. A year of ups-and-downs is prophesied. Business expands and inheritance is likely, also unexpected worries and changes. Elders help progress. Avoid impulsive changes and actions. The child born on this date will be successful in business and through travel, and elderly relatives render valuable aid, but health and friends may occasion anxiety at times. Your day will be adverse. Things must be handled with great caution today.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. In Mexico. It separates Mexico from Lower California.
2. The Isthmus of Suez.
3. The Great Bank.

STARS SAY

For Friday, December 12

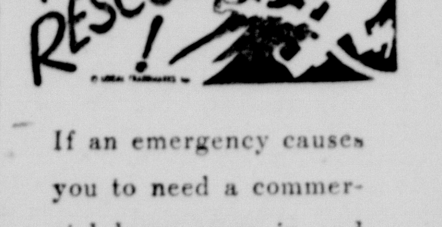
IT IS probable that the current impediments or block arresting the wheels of progress will just as strangely and suddenly spin into action, not only through the friendly and timely intervention of those in high places, but as well due to a radical reorganization of underlying factors, with the new tactics and a concentration of the energies and faculties for aggressive action.

However, this should not be carried to excess or extravagance, since the mentality and emotions are not entirely dependable, being a bit confused or obscure. Heed sound counsel of superiors.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find to their satisfaction that recent peculiar situations locking their plans and established procedures may quite as suddenly spring into action, with highly-accelerated speed under stimulated forces and engeries—strenuous and determined to vanquish all impediments and erratic attacks. In this effort, superiors or influential and farseeing persons may substantially contribute, advising a radical revision or reorganization of plans and objectives. Sound ideas, hard work and studied analysis of conditions succeed, but snap judgments or hasty decisions are fatal.

A child born on this day will have energy and initiative of a progressive and constructive pattern, but may defeat itself by wavering or hasty judgments.



If an emergency causes you to need a commercial loan, come in and talk it over with one of our officers. Action is prompt.

Jane Wyatt

NEW YORK—To those of us who are a little dubious about the right fork to select when we sit down to dine in any place higher-priced than the Automat, the best-known member of the Wyatt family of New York is dark-haired Jane, who is a moo'm pitcher actress.

They still talk about Jane's performance in the film "Lost Horizon," although in recent seasons she has concentrated less on acting and more on rearing her two children, whose names are typically Noel Cowardian — Michael and Christopher.

It is likely, though, that the most remarkable of the Wyatts is an energetic, chic, gray-haired one still living in midtown Manhattan whose name, all wool and two yards wide, is Mrs. Euphemia van Rensselaer Waddington Wyatt.

Mrs. Wyatt is the fair Jane's mother and, in a town figuratively and literally lousy with blue blood, she is so social it hurts. True, her ancestors did not form a welcoming committee for the Mayflower voyagers, but one of them was around long enough ago to sell Albany to the Indians—later helping Colonial troops take it back again, which is a nice daily double.

There are Wyatts and van Rensselaers spilling from many pages of the Social Register; they are members of things like the Colonial Dames of America and in their youth they attend such things as Miss Chapin's School.

• • • •

I REMEMBER JANE TELLING ME about her mother, one day in a darkling corner of Twenty-One. "My father," Jane said, "was a broker and irreverent. Because my mother was devout and stage-struck, my father used to say that if he ever had a son he undoubtedly would be either a priest or actor. He did have a son but he became a radio technician, which is quite another thing.

"There were four of us children—Monica, Elizabeth, Christopher and myself—and we lived in a big red brick house at 13 Lexington avenue. It was a lovely house and I remember making my debut there at a supper dance, but what set it apart from other big houses is that it was full of theatrical atmosphere.

"My mother once wrote a play called 'Monica,' which John Golden produced, and Elizabeth and I never were discouraged when we earnestly announced our intentions of entering ballet and the theater. I am sure mother was secretly pleased."

The Wyatts gave plays at home for their friends, written by Elizabeth, directed by Mrs. Wyatt and starring Jane. Other Social Registerites were exploring bootleg gin's possibilities; the Wyatts explored the theater. In 1929 Jane made her debut, and it was around the same time that tragedy split the red brick mansion on Lexington avenue. Mr. Wyatt lost his money and killed himself.

Mrs. E. V. R. W. Wyatt was left with four children and not too much money. The problem was tough but it was solved. Mrs. W. opened a boarding house.

"This was no ordinary boarding house," Jane told me. "The tenants were actors — budding movie stars, stagestruck models, artists, writers, painters. My dear, the Wyatt boarding house was one of the most brilliant joints of our time. Out in Hollywood I am forever meeting film stars who say, 'Oh, I used to live at your mother's place in New York'."

• • • •

IN TIME THE DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT appropriated the Lexington avenue house, but Mrs. E. V. R. W. W. merely moved uptown. She couldn't stand being cooped up, Jane said, so "she figured the best way to live in a big house was to rent part of it out."

However, running a rooming joint, as Jane put it, was only one facet of Mrs. Wyatt's life. For years she has been a drama critic for the Catholic World—and a number of times has had to review Jane's work.

"Come to think of it," Jane said, "she never HAS praised or damned me too much. She's worse. She never mentions me much."

It has been Jane's habit whenever she was in New York, to board with her mother, eating the house breakfast at 10 and dinner at 7, when the coming geniuses of the world argue sex, life, love and the Democratic party.

What the Social Register people think of all this I do not know, but they go on printing the Wyatt names year after year, so I guess they just are cowed. Jane was tossed out of the S. R. at one time but got right back in, in 1935, by marrying Edgard B. Ward, which is similar to the trick accomplished by socialite Whitney Bourne when she married Stanton Griffis.

Jane likes corned beef and cabbage and buys second-hand clothes from friends. Is that whirring noise General Vanderbilt rotating rapidly in his grave?

St. Philip's Parish House Scene Of Annual Rotary-Ann Party

Fun And Laughter Provided At Fete

Circleville Rotarians, with their wives and friends, went to the annual Rotary-Ann party Thursday evening for an ordinary good time, but the affair proved to be better than their anticipations. The turkey dinner was prepared and served by ladies of St. Philip's Episcopal church in the Parish house.

Preliminaries, especially planned by a committee, composed of John D. Hummel, Norbert Cochran, Durward D. Dowden, Dr. Glen D Philips and Harry Hill, started the fun and laughter, which held forth for the entire evening

Bob Philip's seven piece band, "The Bob Cats", played through the dinner hour. The newly formed band, composed of Sue Brown, pianist; Jimmie Bartholomew, Ed. Wolfe, Ronnie Melvin, Don Beck, Dick Rhoads and young Philips, was well received by an appreciative audience.

Entrance to the hall was marked by a gaily decorated Christmas tree where sprigs of mistletoe were suspended from the ceiling. Each of the four long tables was decorated with bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums, sprays of lavender butterfly bush and tall red tapers.

Places were marked by mats containing comical and droll sayings. Dr. Philips served as toastmaster. Festivities opened with "kissing the Blarney Bull". White elephant gifts were exchanged numerous times under the direction of Dr. Philips.

James L. Yost, president, on behalf of the Rotarians greeted the guests and remarked that the annual Rotary-Ann party was planned months ahead and looked forward to with great anticipation.

Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Gilliland, Mr. and Mrs. James I. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Herrmann were invited to the stage where the ladies participated in a contest—sewing patches upon supposedly worn parts of their husbands' apparel.

The Herrmann's were proclaimed winners. Mrs. Herrmann was named "Princess of Patches", as she sewed a red patch on the seat of her husband's trousers.

Carl Leist impersonated a movie "scout" from Hollywood in search of local talent.

Mr. Cochran spoke of former Rotary-Ann parties and noted that the affairs are the fun-fest activities of the club and the highlight of their activities when they are hosts to their wives and friends.

James L. Yost, president, on behalf of the Rotarians greeted the guests and remarked that the annual Rotary-Ann party was planned months ahead and looked forward to with great anticipation.

Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Gilliland, Mr. and Mrs. James I. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Karl Herrmann were invited to the stage where the ladies participated in a contest—sewing patches upon supposedly worn parts of their husbands' apparel.

The Herrmann's were proclaimed winners. Mrs. Herrmann was named "Princess of Patches", as she sewed a red patch on the seat of her husband's trousers.

Carl Leist impersonated a movie "scout" from Hollywood in search of local talent.

Mr. Cochran spoke of former Rotary-Ann parties and noted that the affairs are the fun-fest activities of the club and the highlight of their activities when they are hosts to their wives and friends.

Boys Said Witnesses To Crime

Police Believe Solution Near

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—Columbus and Worthington police questioned today two boys who may have inadvertently witnessed the attempt to dispose of the body of Elmo C. Rice, whose body was found on the Wilson road bridge over the Olentangy river Wednesday night.

The two boys, William L. Arter, and Don Feather, were walking home from basketball practice on the river road.

The youths told Worthington Marshal James H. Taladay that they saw a darkened auto on the bridge about "a quarter of 9 or 10 to 9."

The 26-year-old crippled real estate dealer was supposed to have left his home, at 8:30 that night.

The boys said they saw an automobile cross the bridge and turn around "a good way up the hill to the east of the bridge" and return and stop in the center of the span.

* * *

THE YOUTHS then said that the headlights on the car were snapped off.

Supposing that they were witnesses to a petting party the boys hooted several times at the car.

Then, according to the boys, the car's headlights came on and the auto raced back to Olentangy River road, turning towards Columbus.

Arter "thought" he saw one person in the car, but claimed the car was new and of a light color.

Feather "believed" that there were two occupants in the car.

Neither of the boys heard any shots, talking or noise in the car which was about 100 to 150 yards from them when it stopped.

Marshal Taladay said he thought the boys "saw the right car."

Rice's car was found within sight of Columbus' Central police station about two hours after the established time of the murder.

Pottery Plan Rebuilding Seen

CADIZ, Dec. 12—Immediate rebuilding of the Scio Pottery Company here, leveled by a one-million-dollar fire late yesterday, was promised today by L. P. Reese, owner.

The famed plant, largest producer of plain white pottery ware, was virtually razed by the fire of unknown origin.

Reese said the plant carried no insurance and set the damage at one million dollars, despite the fact that he reportedly refused an offer of $2,500,000 for the firm last year.

The fire occurred just 11 days before a scheduled party to which Reese had invited 3,000 persons.

Fire departments of six communities battled the blaze, which broke out while employes were changing shifts. No one was injured.

All the master dies and most of the one-story part of the plant were saved but the actual manufacturing area in the center of the plant was destroyed.

'Red' Crawford Named 'Most Valuable Player' For '47

Boosters Make Award

Club Hears Denison Football Coach

David "Red" Crawford, junior halfback, Thursday night was named the "most valuable player" of the 1947 Circleville high school football team.

The announcement came at the annual dinner meeting in Memorial hall of the Circleville Booster club, sponsor of the dinner and the award.

The red-headed backfield dependable received an 18-inch high trophy on selection based on five points:

(1) Attendance at practice and the will to train;

(2) Physical and moral conduct at all times;

(3) Attitude on the field to his opponents as well as to his teammates;

(4) Service to the team; and

(5) Leadership ability.

Dr. Walter F. Heine, president of the Booster club, made the presentation, and said that although "Red" was not the only candidate for this honor, it was certainly well-earned.

THE BANQUET started off with an invocation by Reverand Elisha Kniesley, after which dinner was served.

Decorations for the banquet consisted of Red and Black streamers hung from the balcony and stage, and large red balloons with the scores of 1947 Circleville games suspended over the tables. The tables were decorated with miniature goalposts, made of pipecleaners sunken into black gumdrops.

The dinner was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Amey, and girls of Wing 10, Senior Girl Scouts served.

Johnny Heiskell was master of ceremonies for the affair.

Heiskell led the group in singing the school song, assisted at the piano by Donna Reed.

Tommy Bennett was called on to give a short speech, in which he thanked the club for giving the "breaks' to the boys, and for its cooperation and assistance in the 1947 season.

Steve Brudzinski, head coach of the team, asked the boys themselves to thank the club by standing.

The coach praised the boys for the valiant way they had tried last season, and to tell them how much he enjoyed coaching such a fine group.

Dorwin Peer, faculty manager basketball coach, said the work of the Booster Club has been "great".

BRUDZINSKI introduced the boys to the club, calling two representatives of each class on the stage. Don Mancini and John Valentine represented the freshmen; Harold Hill and Charles Allison sophomores; Charles Sabine and Crawford, juniors; and "Skeets" Smallwood and Gene Radcliff (honorary captain for the '47 squad) were presented in behalf of the seniors. Edna Maynard and Jack Coffland represented the cheerleaders.

Woody Hays, head coach of the undefeated and untied Denison university grid team this year, was speaker for the evening. Hays told the boys how he had whipped his winning team into shape, and of his resolve at the first of the season to have the Denison team in the best condition of any team in the league, which he had proceeded to accomplish.

Hays said boys should stress the educational viewpoint when they should reach college, and related the fact that the boys on his first string maintained a 2.72 average in their studies, even though most of their study time was taken up by other activities.

Hays praised the Booster Club for its activity and interest in the lads, and declared "more clubs should do just as this one does: provide for the team, but leave the coaching up to the coach."

Cecil Andrews responded for the Boosters and presented each senior member of the squad with an honorary membership in the club, to go into effect the day of graduation.

Movies of football games between Denison and Wesleyan, and Denison and Oberlin concluded the program.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Profound firmness enables a man to regard difficulties but as evils to be surmounted, no matter what shape they may assume. —(Crockton)

Topping Nearing 2 Crowns

Baseball, Grid Champs On Tap

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—There was a time around this town when Dan Topping couldn't have gotten a winner in a one-horse race.

But the pendulum inevitably swings in sports and right now, the youthful president of the New York Baseball and Football Yankees is riding it at the top. Possibly to prove that there is something in a name.

With his baseball Yankees safely tucked away as champions of the world, Dan has a fighting chance to come through with a sports year that might set a permanent and unique record.

This is not talk about gate receipts, although his Yankee teams already have reached some new financial highs.

But if Coach Ray Flaherty's highly competent Yankees should beat the Cleveland Browns in the Yankee Stadium Sunday—and they come a little closer every chance they get—Topping could lay claim to having been president of both the world's champion baseball and football teams in the same year.

PLEASE MARK the words "lay claim" carefully. Even if his Yankees should outstruggle the Browns for Admiral Ingram's American conference title, they could never prove that they were the world's champions.

Yet there would be a powerful lot of folks who would think so. Which is another reason why, aside from Alexis Thompson's extremely sensible financial argument, observers believe the two pro leagues eventually will smoke the pipe of peace and engage in an annual football world's series.

There will, in time, become a public demand for such a meeting and when the public demand gets powerful enough, it usually gets what it wants.

Plenty of fans would like to see such a game. They won't this year. Or next. Some December Sunday, though they will. That's as sure as shooting.

The present collective and, in certain instances, personal animosity between the two leagues is as nothing to what existed once between the National and American baseball leagues. Look what happened to them!

Haas Takes Lead In Miami Open

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 12—A par-shattering 65 by Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans led a group of pros and amateurs into the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament today.

Close behind Haas came Ed Furgol of Detroit with a 66, and Sam Byrd, another Detroit entry, who carded a 67.

Haas shot par or better on every hole over the Miami Springs country club course yesterday and marked up five birdies, going out in 33 and coming in with a 32. His score was two strokes off the course record.

Three of the pre-tourney favorites, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal., Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., and Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., scored a 68, 70 and 70 respectively.

Frank Stranahan of Toledo led the amateurs with a two under par, 68. Dave Douglas, surprise winner of the Orlando, Fla., open last week, rang up a 69.

Champion Denies He Is Corpse

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis slept so soundly today he didn't hear the telephone in his New York hotel room.

The call was from a newsman who wanted to check on a report from Chicago, believed to have originated with a prankster, that Louis was dead.

So Marshall Miles, Louis' manager, obligingly got a key from the hotel clerk and entered Louis' room. The champ was sleeping soundly. Just to make sure, Miles shook Louis awake.

Louis denied he was dead and went back to sleep.

Williams Tipped Over Pellone

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Ike Williams, of Trenton, N. J., world's lightweight champion, clashes with Tony Pellone, rugged New York welterweight, in a 10-round, non-title bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Williams is the favorite despite the fact that he will be spotting his rival approximately 10 pounds. Observers figure Ike's punching skill will outweigh Pellone's strength.

Pellone, a rough, aggressive fighter, has made a habit of winning split decisions.

Pettibone Nabs Sixth Straight

Pettibone Plumbers, semipro basketball team operating out of Ashville, grabbed its sixth victory in as many starts Thursday night when they tangled with Reynoldsburg and won, 55-31. The game also marked the end of the first round of play in the eastern division of the Mid-Ohio league.

Russ Gregg paced the Pettibond attack with 19 points while Bill Esterly was top man for Reynolds with 15 counters.

Denison Cagers Nab First Tilt

GRANVILLE, Dec. 12—Denison university's cagers were attempting to emulate today the feats of their football brethren who just recently were crowned Ohio's football kings.

The Big Red five scored nine points last night in the last two minutes of their Ohio conference game with Wilmington to gain a 52 to 46 victory.

Wilmington led 22 to 19 at the half, and the lead changed hands five times before Denison forged ahead to stay.

It was the opener for Denison and was Wilmington's first setback in three games.

Topping Nearing 2 Crowns

Baseball, Grid Champs On Tap

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—There was a time around this town when Dan Topping couldn't have gotten a winner in a one-horse race.

But the pendulum inevitably swings in sports and right now, the youthful president of the New York Baseball and Football Yankees is riding it at the top. Possibly to prove that there is something in a name.

With his baseball Yankees safely tucked away as champions of the world, Dan has a fighting chance to come through with a sports year that might set a permanent and unique record.

This is not talk about gate receipts, although his Yankee teams already have reached some new financial highs.

But if Coach Ray Flaherty's highly competent Yankees should beat the Cleveland Browns in the Yankee Stadium Sunday—and they come a little closer every chance they get—Topping could lay claim to having been president of both the world's champion baseball and football teams in the same year.

PLEASE MARK the words "lay claim" carefully. Even if his Yankees should outstruggle the Browns for Admiral Ingram's American conference title, they could never prove that they were the world's champions.

Yet there would be a powerful lot of folks who would think so. Which is another reason why, aside from Alexis Thompson's extremely sensible financial argument, observers believe the two pro leagues eventually will smoke the pipe of peace and engage in an annual football world's series.

There will, in time, become a public demand for such a meeting and when the public demand gets powerful enough, it usually gets what it wants.

Plenty of fans would like to see such a game. They won't this year. Or next. Some December Sunday, though they will. That's as sure as shooting.

The present collective and, in certain instances, personal animosity between the two leagues is as nothing to what existed once between the National and American baseball leagues. Look what happened to them!

Haas Takes Lead In Miami Open

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 12—A par-shattering 65 by Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans led a group of pros and amateurs into the second round of the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament today.

Close behind Haas came Ed Furgol of Detroit with a 66, and Sam Byrd, another Detroit entry, who carded a 67.

Haas shot par or better on every hole over the Miami Springs country club course yesterday and marked up five birdies, going out in 33 and coming in with a 32. His score was two strokes off the course record.

Three of the pre-tourney favorites, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal., Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., and Lew Worsham of Oakmont, Pa., scored a 68, 70 and 70 respectively.

Frank Stranahan of Toledo led the amateurs with a two under par, 68. Dave Douglas, surprise winner of the Orlando, Fla., open last week, rang up a 69.

Champion Denies He Is Corpse

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis slept so soundly today he didn't hear the telephone in his New York hotel room.

The call was from a newsman who wanted to check on a report from Chicago, believed to have originated with a prankster, that Louis was dead.

So Marshall Miles, Louis' manager, obligingly got a key from the hotel clerk and entered Louis' room. The champ was sleeping soundly. Just to make sure, Miles shook Louis awake.

Louis denied he was dead and went back to sleep.

Williams Tipped Over Pellone

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—Ike Williams, of Trenton, N. J., world's lightweight champion, clashes with Tony Pellone, rugged New York welterweight, in a 10-round, non-title bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Williams is the favorite despite the fact that he will be spotting his rival approximately 10 pounds. Observers figure Ike's punching skill will outweigh Pellone's strength.

Pellone, a rough, aggressive fighter, has made a habit of winning split decisions.

Pettibone Nabs Sixth Straight

Pettibone Plumbers, semipro basketball team operating out of Ashville, grabbed its sixth victory in as many starts Thursday night when they tangled with Reynoldsburg and won, 55-31. The game also marked the end of the first round of play in the eastern division of the Mid-Ohio league.

Russ Gregg paced the Pettibond attack with 19 points while Bill Esterly was top man for Reynolds with 15 counters.

Denison Cagers Nab First Tilt

GRANVILLE, Dec. 12—Denison university's cagers were attempting to emulate today the feats of their football brethren who just recently were crowned Ohio's football kings.

The Big Red five scored nine points last night in the last two minutes of their Ohio conference game with Wilmington to gain a 52 to 46 victory.

Wilmington led 22 to 19 at the half, and the lead changed hands five times before Denison forged ahead to stay.

It was the opener for Denison and was Wilmington's first setback in three games.

Herbert Urges Ohioans To 'Be Careful'

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—Governor Thomas J. Herbert today called upon the people of Ohio to join forces with the National Safety Council and 130 other cooperating organizations which are conducting a nationwide campaign to stop accidents during the Christmas holiday season.

"The effort to reduce the number of accidents which mar Christmas happiness in so many of our homes can be successful only if every one of our citizens does his part to make this Christmas a safe holiday celebration," the governor said.

"It is a job that must be undertaken by every individual. Each person must realize that an accident can happen to him and refuse to take the chance that may cause it.

"Remember that groups of individuals make up families, families make up homes and homes make up our communities," the governor went on.

"THE LITTLE extra forethought, extra common sense and extra courtesy that it takes to make a safe holiday for one person can soon snowball into an accident-free Christmas celebration for all the people in our state," he added.

Herbert pointed out that traffic accidents during the first nine months of this year were only slightly below last year, and in order to end 1947 with a better record, drivers and pedestrians alike must take extra care and caution during the holiday season.

UN Council Coasting To Year's End

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 12—The United Nations security council is coasting along until the end of the year to avoid major decisions on the eve of the reshaping of the 11-nation body through the annual rotation of non-permanent members.

Canada, Argentina and the Ukraine will take their seats at the shiny horseshoe table as soon as the council is summoned in 1948, which is expected to be the first week of January.

The three nations leaving the council are Poland, Australia and Brazil.

The 1948 security council, slated to make decisions on which are staked the security and peace of the world, will thus be composed of the following 11 countries representing all of the 57 UN members:

The United States, Britain, Soviet Russia, France, China, Syria, Colombia, Belgium, Canada, Argentina and The Ukraine.

THE BIG FIVE powers are free to wield the veto as heretofore, although the year-round "little assembly" will be in session concurrently with the council at Lake Success and may be called into play during the year to discourage another veto rampage by Soviet Russia.

The United States frequently counted on Australia during 1947 for support in the sharp battles with Russia over basic global issues, but it can be expected that Argentina will be ranged on the American side in the majority of decisions next year.

Sokolsky's These Days

Yes, in this picture, even a Bishop forgets his faith. He suffers from practicality. He would sooner build a glorious cathedral of stone and steel than bring the light of love into the lives of those about him. He is driven by the need for accomplishment. He who preaches of angels doubts the one who comes into his life. For sophistication permits him to speak what he does not surely believe. Yet, in the end, the Bishop, too, knows the truth, for he has witnessed God's wonders performed.

I felt, as I watched "The Bishop's Wife" on the screen, that Sam Goldwyn, the immigrant from a Warsaw that is no more, whose kin must have been among those murdered by hate, was impelled to portray this picture of love, of kindliness, of forbearance as a Christmas carol in this year 1947 when men forget so easily that civilization is conscience and love and the aspiration toward God.

Herbert Urges Ohioans To 'Be Careful'

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—Governor Thomas J. Herbert today called upon the people of Ohio to join forces with the National Safety Council and 130 other co-operating organizations which are conducting a nationwide campaign to stop accidents during the Christmas holiday season.

"The effort to reduce the number of accidents which mar Christmas happiness in so many of our homes can be successful only if every one of our citizens does his part to make this Christmas a safe holiday celebration," the governor said.

"It is a job that must be undertaken by every individual. Each person must realize that an accident can happen to him and refuse to take the chance that may cause it.

"Remember that groups of individuals make up families, families make up homes and homes make up our communities," the governor went on.

"THE LITTLE extra forethought, extra common sense and extra courtesy that it takes to make a safe holiday for one person can soon snowball into an accident-free Christmas celebration for all the people in our state," he added.

Herbert pointed out that traffic accidents during the first nine months of this year were only slightly below last year, and in order to end 1947 with a better record, drivers and pedestrians alike must take extra care and caution during the holiday season.

UN Council Coasting To Year's End

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 12—The United Nations security council is coasting along until the end of the year to avoid major decisions on the eve of the reshaping of the 11-nation body through the annual rotation of non-permanent members.

Canada, Argentina and the Ukraine will take their seats at the shiny horseshoe table as soon as the council is summoned in 1948, which is expected to be the first week of January.

The three nations leaving the council are Poland, Australia and Brazil.

The 1948 security council, slated to make decisions on which are staked the security and peace of the world, will thus be composed of the following 11 countries representing all of the 57 UN members:

The United States, Britain, Soviet Russia, France, China, Syria, Colombia, Belgium, Canada, Argentina and The Ukraine.

THE BIG FIVE powers are free to wield the veto as heretofore, although the year-round "little assembly" will be in session concurrently with the council at Lake Success and may be called into play during the year to discourage another veto rampage by Soviet Russia.

The United States frequently counted on Australia during 1947 for support in the sharp battles with Russia over basic global issues, but it can be expected that Argentina will be ranged on the American side in the majority of decisions next year.

Yes, in this picture, even a Bishop forgets his faith. He suffers from practicality. He would sooner build a glorious cathedral of stone and steel than bring the light of love into the lives of those about him. He is driven by the need for accomplishment. He who preaches of angels doubts the one who comes into his life. For sophistication permits him to speak what he does not surely believe. Yet, in the end, the Bishop, too, knows the truth, for he has witnessed God's wonders performed.

I felt, as I watched "The Bishop's Wife" on the screen, that Sam Goldwyn, the immigrant from a Warsaw that is no more, whose kin must have been among those murdered by hate, was impelled to portray this picture of love, of kindliness, of forbearance as a Christmas carol in this year 1947 when men forget so easily that civilization is conscience and love and the aspiration toward God.

FIGURING out some one desperate possible way to beat the declarer's contract—if the missing cards happen to be divided a particular way—that is the soul of the finest defensive playing in rubber bridge. Even if the effort proves to have cost an extra trick handed to the declarer, you deserve credit for trying the only means you can find that allows the slightest ray of hope. If such tactics beat only one otherwise sure game out of half a dozen, you are still better off than if you had not given him that extra trick on the other occasions.

West opened the club K, East playing the 2 after the A won. The diamond 3 was led to the K and A, whereupon West went into a conference with himself. It looked pretty hopeless, but still he didn't give up.

He decided that scoring the club Q would probably be safe enough, though it would build the J in dummy for a possible discard of some loser in South's hand, if the Q happened to be ruffed, and it might make life easier for the declarer.

Next he figured out that South might possibly have held three little spades, six hearts to the K, three diamonds to the K-J and a singleton club. In that event, leading his club Q would enable South to discard all his losing spades on diamonds and the club J. But it also would give the defenders a chance to defeat the contract.

With that situation, a small spade to the A in East's hand would bring a spade return to the K and a third spade would compel the dummy to ruff high to take the trick if East happened to hold three trumps to the J. That ruffing high might set up the J for a trump trick since West's 10 would be a pusher. It was a bit far-fetched, but he tried it. It failed, of course, but you couldn't shoot West for not trying.

Countians Eyed In State Panel's Fraud Probe

900 Ohioans Suspected By BUC

Prosecution Stage Unreached Here

Several Pickaway countians are among more than 900 persons suspected of fraud by the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, it was disclosed Friday by Charles C. Thomas, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service in Circleville. The OSES is a division of the BUC.

"The type of fraud investigated generally involved an attempt to collect cash benefits to which the claimant was not entitled." Thomas said.

"Such attempts usually are made by failure to correctly report earnings and by misrepresentation of material facts affecting the claimant's eligibility for unemployment benefits," he added.

The number of investigations throughout Ohio, was revealed in a bulletin received by Smith from Frank J. Collopy, Columbus, BUC state administrator.

The bulletin pointed out that the BUC investigations have covered fraud cases under both the state law and the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, better known as part of the GI Bill of Rights.

* * *

THE BUC MAINTAINS an experienced five-man staff of investigators whose primary job it is to determine the facts in fraud cases and, if the evidence warrants it, to prepare such cases for prosecution in the courts.

Smith said that none of the Pickaway county investigations has reached the prosecution stage.

Robert L. Wilcox, readjustment allowance agent for Ohio, is attached to the BUC as liaison man for the Veterans administration in matters pertaining to the Servicemen's Readjustment Act. He works closely with the BUC's investigatory staff. In a recent report to the BUC administrator, he stated that 239 Ohio veterans "had been found guilty of knowingly accepting allowances to which they were not entitled" since the Readjustment Act was enacted in June, 1944.

Of this total, Wilcox said, 61 cases have been turned over to the U. S. district attorney's office for prosecution. Five such cases had resulted in convictions as of Oct. 31.

The penalty for violation of the Readjustment Act is $1,000 in fines, a year in prison, or both.

Of the total number of fraud cases under investigation, 735 involved claimants under the Ohio Law. In the same period, 12 persons were convicted and sentenced under this Law. The maximum penalty for violation of the Ohio Unemployment Compensation law is $300, three months in jail, or both. Fraud cases investigated under the Readjustment Act totaled 211.

Fraud cases account for a very small percentage of the BUC's total benefit claims lead but, as Collopy puts it, "The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation is determined to protect the public's interest and will continue to do its utmost to eliminate fraud entirely."

There are approximately 1,250 state accredited schools of nursing in the United States and its possessions.

Naturopathists Given Advice

COLUMBUS, Dec. 12—Naturopathists have been told by a Franklin County common pleas judge that they must take their battle for recognition to the state medical board.

Judge John R. King refused to issue a declaratory judgement ordering the medical board to issue licenses to naturopathists.

In his decision sustaining a demurrer to the suit of William R. Arnett, of Columbus and three others, the judge held that the naturopathists should take their plea for recogniion to the legislature.

Naturopathists are those who advocate the use of herbs, roots, etc., for treatment of ailments.

Cruiser Subs For Scooter

MIDWAY, Ky., Dec. 12—There are quite a few motorists who are not overjoyed to learn that Midway, Ky., is no longer a one-scooter town.

Police Chief J. W. McDaniel claims that he has put the new motor cruiser to work on traffic through the town and the arrests made with the automobile have doubled over those made with the previous mode of transportation.

The chief said he didn't have much luck chasing speeders with his old motor scooter.

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The clashes in the London Big Four foreign ministers' conference indicates East and West are jockeying today to thrust the blame for a breakdown on the other.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, admittedly a wily negotiator, is accused by the Western delegates of merely trying to prolong an unsuccessful session while he poses as a champion of the German people.

Secretary of State Marshall, trying to pin him down on the key Soviet reparations demand, declares that Russia is milking Germany already at the rate of a half billion dollars in goods yearly.

Marshall says this is done through a "gigantic Soviet Trust" in the Russian occupation zone—for the first time using a word that Moscow statesmen consider a vile epithet and are always hurling at the so-called "capitalist warmongers" in the West.

* * *

AMERICAN delegates admit that there is little chance of an agreement at this session on Germany.

Automatically that includes a settlement on Austria because Russia is making the German matter a priority despite the compromise device of having the Austrian problem first on the agenda.

Austrian statesmen are particularly gloomy at the chance of getting free of the Soviet economic stranglehold at any foreseeable date.

There are several reasons for this: Russia controls from 50 to 100 percent of the drug, steel, turbine and other key Austrian industries on the pretext that they are "Nazi assets." Russia controls 100 percent of the oil, locomotive and narrow gauge rail equipment.

Russia also can hold her troops in Hungary, Romania and other Balkan lands as long as the Austrian treaty is held up.

Then, there is the Marshall Plan which Russia is pledged to defeat if it can. This plan is a process extending into many years ahead, and includes the divided Austrian and German territories.

By keeping her troops in Austria the Russians, with the cooperation of Poland, Yugoslavia and others, can maintain their so-called "iron curtain" line clear from Stettin on the Baltic down to the explosive Trieste "free territory."

DURING the entire period of the Marshall Plan—which some experts concede is a gamble at best—the division of the two strategic lands will force the United States to pour out millions of dollars in Austrian and German aid.

Russia perhaps can afford to wait and see how long the American taxpayer will foot such bill. If Molotov agrees to a German and Austrian settlement many believe it will be when he becomes convinced that the Americans can make their plan work.

Localite Plans Studying In Old Mexico

Charles Will, son of Mrs. Clark Will, South Court street, along with 50 other students from Ohio State university, is planning to begin the new year in Old Mexico.

They will travel to Mexico by bus, train and automobile late this month and attend classes at Mexico City College from January 5 to March 19. The plan is sponsored by Dr. James B. Tharp, department of education.

Students of fine arts, philosophy and foreign language will compose the majority of the group. Since Mexico City college has no dormitories, the OSU students will board with Mexican families under supervised conditions.

The local man who is majoring in Spanish, was graduated by Circleville high school and served with the Army in Europe during World War II.

2 Weed-Killers Are Developed

AKRON, Dec. 12—The B. F. Goodrich Company has announced the discovery of two new weed-killing chemicals, one of which is "particularly useful against crab grass," as well as barnyard, orchard and clue grass, cattails and similar plants.

The two herbicides have been tested by federal and state agricultureal experiment stations "with excellent results against many weeds and grasses not economically or satisfactorily controlled by other chemicals or practices."

Their jaw-breaking official names are sodium xanthate and allyl mixed chlorophenyl carbonate.

Polar Bear Drops 2 Cubs

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12 — Aurora, the Cincinnati zoo's 500-pound polar bear is a mother again.

Aurora, however, is the bashful type, and zoo officials don't know exactly how much her family increased. At least two cubs were seen in her den.

Possibly acting on the premise that there are more mouths to feed, zoo officials indicated that they may resubmit the one-and-a-half - million - dollar zoo bond issue at the coming May primary.

The issue failed in November by less than one-half of one percent. At that time, however, a 65 percent majority was needed. A special session of the legislature last week reduced the needed majority to 60 percent.
